How it works

Read a "Would you rather" question. Students physically move to one side of the room (or raise hands) to show their choice, then justify it to a partner or the group. Works with no prep beyond printing/reading the list – no video, no worksheet needed.

Justification language (put on the board first):

Simple (everyone)	Stronger
I'd rather... because...	I'd prefer... mainly because...
I like... better.	I'm inclined to go with...
For me, it's...	If I had to choose, I'd say... – though I can see the appeal of the other one.

Round 1 - Sport & coaching style

1. Would you rather have a coach who shouts direct commands at you (like the horse riding/tennis coaches) or one who explains everything calmly before you try (like the basketball videos)?
2. Would you rather learn a sport completely alone with a video or with a coach correcting your mistakes live?
3. Would you rather play an individual sport (tennis, horse riding) or a team sport (basketball)?
4. Would you rather be the point guard (organising everyone) or the center (relying on your own size and strength)?
5. Would you rather master one sport really well or be decent at five different sports?

Round 2 - Language & culture

1. Would you rather understand a coach's accent perfectly but miss half the vocabulary, or understand every word but struggle with a strong accent?
 2. Would you rather all your English lessons used British content or a mix of British and American content, like we've had this week?
 3. Would you rather learn English through direct commands ("Heels down!") or through explanations and analysis (like the basketball positions video)?
 4. Would you rather find out a video is American but sounds British, or British but sounds American? Which surprises you more?
 5. Would you rather a national anthem be calm and formal (like "God Save the King") or dramatic and about a specific event (like "The Star-Spangled Banner")?

Round 3 - Just for fun (energy boost)

1. Would you rather score the winning goal in a World Cup final or make the game-winning shot in a basketball final?
 2. Would you rather ride a horse at full gallop or serve for match point at Wimbledon?
 3. Would you rather be a professional athlete who's brilliant but not famous, or famous but only an average player?
 4. Would you rather train every day but never compete, or compete every week with almost no training?

Optional: student-written round

Once they've got the pattern, have pairs write 1-2 of their own "Would you rather" questions using vocabulary from any of the sports activities (horse riding, tennis, basketball, anthems, predictions). Collect and read out the best ones to the group – nice way to recycle a whole week's vocabulary in one go, and it's inherently competitive, which should land well with this group.

Round 3 deliberately pulls in the World Cup and anthem material too, since "those themes" could mean the whole week rather than just the three sports – easy to drop if you want to keep this strictly to horse riding/tennis/basketball.
